D&B Country Risk Update on Romania – Jul '10

Romania is fighting the crisis. The government can probably pass the legislation needed to meet the requirements of its international funding deal. Meanwhile, the commercial environment will remain challenging, despite Romania having acceded to the EU in 2007. In particular, credit risk has risen as the economic downturn has progressed, with bankruptcies rising. Stricter credit terms imposed by shippers have ensured that cross-border payments performance has not deteriorated, but D&B continues to recommend caution when dealing with new prospects.
